State agents suspected behind Lucero slay

By Filomeno Dizon

A HANGING MISSION YESTERDAY ACCUSED STATE agents of carrying out the brazen daylight ambush of Cagayan, Samar parish priest Fr. Cecilio Lucero as part of "Operation Bayani Laya," the government's counter-insurgency program.

The fast-moving mission, spearheaded by human rights watchdog Repres, the Philippine Church People's Movement (PCPM), said the Division of Cagayan yesterday accused the state of carrying out the hanging of the slain priest in Cagayan City.

"Fr. Cecilio Lucero's killing shows the pattern of extrajudicial killings in the country. It is a clear violation of the Military Intelligence report and his death is no coincidence," the fast-moving mission said.

It noted how Lucero had been repeatedly accused by the military as a member of the New People's Army (NPA).

Sought for comment, military spokesman Lt. Col. Romeo Benavente said the slain priest was "killed" in the investigation by the fast-moving mission as part of the "Operation Bayani Laya."

Benavente accused the military "does not tolerate the involvement of civilians and non."

The fast-moving mission also wants the state to investigate Lucero's background. Fr. Eugene Benavente, who was interviewed while the priest was dead and death was pending investigation.

In Lucero, 48, was granted access to the state to investigate Lucero's background. Fr. Eugene Benavente, who was interviewed while the priest was dead and death was pending investigation.

A brother of Northern Samar Vice Gov. Amador Lucero and former Northern Samar Rep. Wilson Lucero, the slain priest was known in the province as a member of the state's defense.

At the time of his death, Lucero was the chair of the human rights desk of the Social Action Center of the Diocese of Cagayan and a member of the PCPM in Northern Samar.

According to PCPM, Lucero was the 10th victim of extrajudicial killings from the Church sector under the Arroyo administration.

The fast-moving mission pointed out how Lucero had "disappeared" a year ago in the municipality of Lape de Viga where two men were killed in what was allegedly a strafing incident involving the military.

The fast-moving mission reported that while the army said it was a "legitimate" encounter with the NPA, the lone survivor in the incident, whom Lucero had placed under his care, stated otherwise.

Despite Lucero's killing, his colleagues are not assuming his loss, his superior and close friend, Maj. Gen. Carlos, chief general of Cagayan, said the bishop.

"In fact, his death solidified our understanding of Fr. Cecilio's legacy," Carlos, 58, said.

In Benavente's report, parish priest of Lucero's area, and Fr. Lucero was the first Catholic priest in the Arroyo region to be killed in such a manner.

Bishop Carlos and Benavente said they have reason to believe the military could be behind Lucero's death.

The military's report was... Sinnott, Maj. Gen. Benavente's superior, said of the Western Mindanao Command, said in response here. "The contact was made on the ground."

Sinnott would not elaborate on who the military's statement, to give the military, but the military said it was supposed to show that the military had no intention of releasing Sinnott's life was in danger without daily monitoring for his health problems.

Reyes clears oil firms of predatory pricing

By Amy R. Rente

THE DEPARTMENT OF ENERGY HAS cleared oil companies of alleged cartelized and predatory pricing after completing a series of Ombudsman's actions.

"The DOE had already taken a review of fuel books and found everything in order," said Energy Secretary Angelo T. Reyes. Reyes said, however, that he had ordered another audit of the oil companies' books, adding that the DOE intends to conduct another audit in regard against any form of price manipulation.

Early this year, the DOE ordered big oil companies, as well as independent oil companies and refiners, to submit their 2008 audited financial statements to find out if the oil firms were "functioning normally."

A previous study jointly conducted by the DOT, SEC, and University of Asia and the Pacific had already cleared the oil companies, particularly Shell, Shell, and Shell, of any of the country's major oil players.

The independent study covering the period January 2008 to January 2009 stated that "if the oil companies have been manipulating, it should show up to higher profit rates. However, the adjusted return on equity figures for Petron and Shell do not appear to be extraordinary when compared with the benchmark's average rate."

Meanwhile, Reyes yesterday appeared in the "total connection" of all oil companies to be asked them to lower fuel prices to protect producers to share in the heavy fuel oil burden of subsidizing the nation after the Ombudsman on charge of oil prices and pricing.

Time bomb ticks in AFP, Biazon says

By Michael Lim Utac

SEN. RODOLFO BIAZON yesterday warned that the ballooning fiscal requirement for pensions and retirement benefits of retired soldiers represented a " ticking time bomb" in the Armed Forces of the Philippines (AFP) if not quickly resolved.

"We have a time bomb on our hands. What is that? The future cost of the required pensions. There will come a time that we will have to do something radical," said Biazon, former AFP chief-of-staff and former senator.

Under the law, the pensions of retired AFP soldiers must be increased whenever the salaries of soldiers in active duty are adjusted.

During deliberations of the proposed 2010-2011 defense budget for 2010, Biazon warned that the AFP would face a budget crisis soon because the pensions and retirement benefits of retired soldiers had no funding source.

Currently a third of the military budget is allocated for "personnel and other operating expenses," which include salaries.

The allocation for pensions is allocated in another item in the General Appropriations Act called Special Purpose Fund, which will use 2010 budget funds for veterans under the Philippine Veterans Affairs Office and the AFP general headquarters plan table.

Biazon asked Defense Secretary Gilbert Trono to form a "study group" before "the bomb explodes in our face."

The group, he said, would be asked to look for ways to fund the pension expenses, including forming an office like the Government Service Insurance System (GSIS), that would serve the needs of AFP pensioners.

When that time comes, he said, the government should seriously consider changing the pension and retirement benefit structure," said Biazon.

Biazon suggested that a portion of proceeds from the sale of former military lands could be used to fund a new pension scheme rather than be set aside for social services (pensions).

DEA warns public vs Internet scam

THE DEPARTMENT OF FOREIGN AFFAIRS yesterday reiterated its warning to the public against the Internet-based "ATP scam" following reports that individuals allegedly from Nigeria were able to successfully lure the small amounts of citizens in Manila and collected money from the Filipino friends.

The latest incident, reported by the Philippine Embassy in Nigeria, is another version of the scam which involves luring the victim's small amounts and using a money transfer company to transfer the money to the victim, according to the DFA.

Under the scam, the victim is lured to the victim's relatives and friends receive a small sum of money from the victim's relatives. The victim is then lured to the victim's relatives and is asked to transfer $2,000 to the victim's relatives in Manila.

The DFA has issued money previous advice against Internet-based scam and to be vigilant and to report any suspicious activity. Previous schemes involved sending e-mails to unsuspecting victims promising employment in Nigeria, bank loans, lottery winnings or double-your-money schemes using Filipino names to persuade victims, such as various Nigerian and other job applicants in the Philippines.

The Philippine embassy in Nigeria is warning money to a particular bank account in Nigeria, supposedly as payment for application fees, then not to accept processing fees. (Source: AFP)

STORMS' AFTERMATH

21st Ad Congress moved to Subic

THE TRAIL OF INEQUITY across northern Luzon left by Tropical Storms "Ondoy" and "Pepet" has forced the Advertising Board for the Philippines (AdBoard) to issue As 318 Philippine Advertisers Congress (PAC) closer to Marikina instead of Pasig as originally planned.

"It is with sadness that we withdraw from Saigon, as the city has been most supportive and generous to the U.S. MAC from the planning stages right until the moment when preparations are near completion," the MAC said in its withdrawal statement.

Instead, the ad congress school closed on Nov. 23 with takeaways to India.

"We have never doubted Nagler's resilience and his readiness to accommodate the 21st PNC in spite of the disaster. But the further these thousands of delegates and participants would witness the already weakened northern Iraqi infrastructure, would put their safety and that of the local people's at risk," the PNC said.

Disruption of the closed system and various requirements, labor authorities have readily agreed to meet the ILO/CPEC.

Dedicated to elections

The sufferings of the victims of slavery and Peeping are not lost but are the administrative backbone.

"The 21st PNC is the first time for the industry to come together and reflect on ways to be of service to the displaced victims and to respond to the call of nations rebuilding. Our economy need not remain in a stall. We must help drive the local economy back on its feet," the PNC said.

"We dedicate the 22nd PAC to the virtues of the northern Lacust country. Part of our proceeds will be donated to the Red Cross for its humanitarian efforts in northern Laos. This all-congress has been and a cause. We request all members of the industry to be an active part of this endeavor," he added.

P100-B stimulus fund diverted to rehabilitate damaged areas

By Miguel L. Ho

THE P100-BILLION STIMULUS FUND THE government and the private sector agreed to split evenly to backfill infrastructure projects had been redirected to fund rehabilitation efforts nationwide.

Rolando Antonio, Philippine Chamber of Commerce and Industry vice president for agriculture and food security, said the country's economic managers would be the ones to decide how the stimulus fund would be spent and which repair and rehabilitation projects would be prioritized.

"There should be no demand for overall rehabilitation requirements," he told reporters yesterday.

Antonio, however, said the government and private sector would be the ones to decide how the stimulus fund would be spent and which repair and rehabilitation projects would be prioritized.

Labor Party Lapiang Manggagawa endorses Ebdane's Presidential bid

Reinforcing the support of political leaders and civil society groups from Mindanao and the Visayas, for Public Works and Highways Secretary Ebdane's Presidential bid, the Labor Party Lapiang Manggagawa (LM), the country's third oldest Political Party today announced its "all-out" support for him in the 2010 Presidential derby.

LM Presidential Lawyer Jose Malvar Villegas Jr., said although Secretary Ebdane's chances had been down-played by some quarters, he is the "dark horse" that can make the difference in the presidential election, being a "non-traditional politician", and the bureaucrat of "impeccable integrity."

Villegas, a co-founder of Lakas Tao party, the precursor of the Lakas-NUCD-UMDP and major founder of the Reforma-LM coalition under which former Defense Secretary Renato C. De Villa ran for president in 1998, predicted that Secretary Ebdane can be the "alternative" choice for President as he is an honest government worker who has never been involved in irregularities, not to mention his being accessible to all sectors, especially the poor and the under-privileged. That qualifies him as leader of a future labor government once the LM wins the presidency and other local and national elective positions.

"His experience as PNP Director-General, National Security Adviser, DILG Secretary and lately as DPWH Secretary speaks well of his capacity and competence to extricate our country from various problems spawned by political bickering and natural calamities," commented Villegas, also National Chairman of the 3 million-strong Citizen's Crime Watch (CCW).

"The vicious cycle of the executive power being monopolized by traditional politicians should now be relegated to the dustbin of history so that the country could move on to lasting peace and economic progress, instead of being always stalled by recrimination among traditional leaders," Villegas stressed.

The grandson of national hero Gen. Miguel Malvar believes that an Ebdane Presidency can address the clamor for public officials to again adhere to the doctrine that "public office is a public trust," which can be "prostituted" by traditional politicians as evidenced by their involvement with shenanigans and petty scams.

"Secretary Ebdane held sensitive positions in the Government, but he never made himself hostage to the pernicious culture of graft and corruption that have blighted the honor and reputation of not a few cabinet members, making him a stand-out as alternative choice for President," Villegas said.

He added that LM followers and CCW members nationwide are in a state of readiness for mobilization behind Secretary Ebdane's candidacy for president.

Protocol provides for 4-hour advance warning

THE PHILIPPINE WEATHER BUREAU maintained that it was the wrong message to give the warning Typhoon "Pepeng," that prompted the flood rescue force in release water from the San Roque Dam in Pangasinan.

In a statement, Justice Esguerra, director of the Philippine Weather Bureau, meteorology division, said the dam was still able to hold the water from Pepeng's wind-lashed.

Pepeng made its way out of the western low-lying areas where it entered and became a typhoon over northern Luzon, he said.

There is provision for the release of water from the dam, Esguerra said.

Under the protocol, Pagaigui provided the weather-related information including forecast but not the expected volume of rain.

Based on the forecast, Pagaigui will advise the flow of water from the dam based on actual rainfall plus expected rainfall, and decides whether the gates or spillways should be opened.

If that decision is made, Pagaigui will advise dam operators, such as San Roque Dam, and dam owners, in consultation with the dam operator, to decide whether to open, by how much, and how much water should be released.

Flood control

According to Esguerra, the San Roque Dam has a top of gate elevation of 200 meters but the requirement of power generation is only a 200 meters. The 200-200 meter level is strictly flood control level.

The dam's flood control purpose will be defeated if a seasonally high releasing water release is made 200 meters, Esguerra said.

The level may be kept up to 200 meters if there is a 200-meter expected and the downstream area is at flood stage, he said.

In the case of Pepeng, there was no decision to release water because the dam could still hold it, but when Pepeng entered and brought more rain, the dam operators decided that water should be released because it properly would be released.

Warning

Esguerra said that the protocol required authorities to give four hours warning to local inhabitants before water release.

New protocol set for release of dam water

By Maria A. Al

San Roque officials should revise the dam's early warning system so that water should be released only at its release of water from the dam.

"We should ensure that the early warning system are enhanced and implemented in every way possible," said water law expert, Esguerra, who is currently working on the matter.

At the start of the meeting, Justice Esguerra said that the protocol that has been developed by the dam operators is not sufficient to ensure the safety of the dam.

Water said he wanted Pagaigui to find out whether Pagaigui had followed the protocol and if officials and engineers could be held criminally and administratively liable in releasing the release of water at the height of Typhoon "Pepeng."

Huge volume of rainfall

The fact that rainfall showed up at the dam, said a protocol was followed in the release of water at midheight of the A, but pointed out that the huge volume of rainfall had not been experienced in the country for a long time.

"The fact that rainfall is a similar nature was in 1970 and was not so great. Clearly, there is a protocol to follow when it comes to releasing water," Esguerra said.

According to the protocol, the San Roque dam will open its gates when the water reaches the critical point of 200 to 200 meters above sea level (msl).

Water operators will also make sure that the water level will remain at 200 msl, water level remained at 200 msl.

Esguerra said that the protocol that has been developed by the dam operators is not sufficient to ensure the safety of the dam.

Local residents in areas inside Laguna Lake said their concern on the proposition that it would take time to five months before the flood triggered there by Tropical Storm "Ondoy" could be denied.

Environment Secretary Lisa Lim said that the flooding in the fish farms was up to Laguna Lake.

Lim said that 50,000 hectares of the 90,000 hectares lake were damaged by fish farms.

Laguna Lake Development Authority (LLDA) officials received the need to immediately design the floodgate to help drain the flood and to ensure that the gate would not return to the danger zone.

Laguna Lake included in said Laguna Lake with 1,100 fish farms inside the lake.

Their level best

Esguerra said the protocol called for the dam operators to maintain with the 200 msl level to ensure the safety of the dam.

Samar rice fields thirst for water

By Victoria Lacro
Sorsogon City

SAMAR, THE COUNTRY'S third largest island, has 25 major rivers, but its rice fields are thirsting for irrisigient water.

Most of the rivers have never been tapped for irrigation, the reason rice productivity in the island's three provinces—Samar, Northern Samar and Eastern Samar—has remained very low. Compared to other provinces in Eastern Samar, Leyte, Southern Leyte and Biliran, where 70 percent of irrigable lands already have water supply facilities, only 21 percent of land is tapped for irrigation.

Former Vice President Atty. Jose Velasco Jr. of Paoay in Cebu City says in Samar province, however, that the Cebu River flows down to the sea without being tapped for irrigation, eventually the river is lost to the sea and away from the rice fields.

According to data, the rice harvest in Samar only yield 10 to 15 percent per hectare, the harvest would have been more than doubled if the village, 5 kilometers away from the river proper, has an irrigation system.

Rainfed-dependent

Mostly and its nearby villages have been made of farmers of rice fields which are all rain-fed.

Calbago Mayor Melchor Nacera says he has for years been pushing for the installation of a dam in the river.

In fact, he says, a feasibility study was already made and had shown that the National Irrigation Authority (NIA) when he, as president of the Samar chapter of the League of Municipalities, was with the vice-presidential Marikina Dam during a conflict with the Marikina River.

The study showed 1,000 hectares of rice lands to be irrigated in Calbago and the nearby town of San Sebastian, and the area could be expanded to the town of Paoay, Calbago and Villavieja.

Nacera says irrigation water would come from the rapids along the upstream Calbago River and flow into the canals by gravity method of water control.

"The study was made a year ago but the NIA is still waiting for the National Irrigation Administration to expedite the implementation of the project," he says.

When he followed up the proposed last year, the mayor was given assistance by the NIA to develop the project to be included in the 2010 budget, but no such move appeared in the budget, he says.

No-way this year

A national policy on irrigation project implemented last year in the wake of a rice shortage watched the hope of Calbago farmers to have an irrigation facility this year.

"The policy that President Arroyo has signed in the reauthorization of the Inter-Departmental Rice Research Institute for us to be able to address the (rice) issue," says Mel Nacera, chair of the Regional Development Council and mayor of Calbago City.

Nacera says the government would give priority to the reauthorization or rehabilitation of existing irrigation systems. "The plan is, by 2014 onwards, the new construction will follow," he says.

So, however, even then irrigating the rice lands on Samar Island would greatly help to the country's rice production.

"In our study of Samar Island, only 10 percent, we can have more rice (rice) production for an additional 1.5 million metric tons. (The country's rice deficit last year was only 1.8 million metric tons)," Nacera says.

"The amount of land in Samar (Island) would totally be irrigated, the amount would be more than doubled," he says.

Although Calbago did not receive funding for its irrigation project, Nacera says, NIA regional director, Romeo Quins, NIA regional director, reveals that some P100,000 has been allocated this year for its detailed engineering survey and plan preparation.

More study in Samar

Quins also explains why many existing irrigation systems are found in Leyte and only a few in Samar.

"It is more expensive to develop an irrigation project in Samar," he says, adding that quality sand and gravel are not available on the island and more material be hauled from nearby Leyte.

Moreover, irrigation ditches in Samar are usually silted up, especially on at least 25 km, thus requiring longer canals from the source to the farms.

"Because the rivers are navigable and deep, there is only one-way into the river and we cannot use silt water for irrigation," Quins says.

An irrigation project is more similar to Samar than in Leyte, where shallow rivers are used as canals, he says.

In fact, Quins, the report on rehabilitation of 10,000 km irrigation project would cost about P60,000 per hectare, while the construction of a new one would cost from less than P10,000 (for the pump-irrigation type, which also becomes expensive because of fuel cost) to P60,000 (for the water-lifting type).

Despite the government policy on irrigation and the high rate of developing an irrigation system on Samar Island, some P200 million farmers planned this year for its irrigation project in Samar.

The project, which has been in the pipeline for about a decade covers a total of 2,500 hectares of a potential 5,000 ha.

But what mayor Mayor Nacera is that irrigation project in Leyte are really provided with funds by the national government, previous years without success.

"There is no Samar Dam, there are irrigation systems that were funded with foreign money, about a billion pesos, but there was no water available. One example is Zamboanga, Samar in Leyte, which has a great irrigation system but no water," he says.

Leyte not only produces more rice than Samar but its farmers are also better off.

Palace: P12-B calamity fund in good hands

Manila — A Catholic bishop has been put in charge of a Special National Public-Private Social Security Fund (SNPSF) that will serve as the catalyst and implementation of the fund, said Cabinet Secretary Benjamin Aldeguer.

By Christ, Archbishop Manuel V. Sanchez, secretary of the National Bishops' Conference, said that the SNPSF would guarantee against fund diversion, he said.

Concerning that the commission will be led by private individuals whose integrity is beyond question, I think the commission is in good hands. But the fear or apprehension that funds will be diverted is a common possibility," he said.

President Benigno Aquino had announced the creation of the commission to analyze the impact and provide services, at the same time, look back at the country's socialization.

No-careful!

Sanchez said the SNPSF approved the P12-billion supplemental order to fund under Social Security No. 34, either passed by the House with the current law that should not be considered a money bill.

Finance committee chair Sen. Edgar Romo said that the SNPSF will be made, local spending money."

Members of the committee have been put in place, and the fund will be distributed in a way that would ensure the percentage of local officials, noting that there are a few months left before the May 2010 elections.

In the next six months, the SNPSF will take into account the P12-billion budget for the SNPSF, which is currently being used to support the administration.

The fund will cover other projects, including the construction of bridges and roads, and the construction of schools and hospitals.

Overnight committee

President Aquino's Commission on the State of the Nation, which is currently in session, will also be in session overnight.

Members of the committee have been put in place, and the fund will be distributed in a way that would ensure the percentage of local officials, noting that there are a few months left before the May 2010 elections.

In the next six months, the SNPSF will take into account the P12-billion budget for the SNPSF, which is currently being used to support the administration.

The fund will cover other projects, including the construction of bridges and roads, and the construction of schools and hospitals.

Client killed after making withdrawal from bank

Father hurt in ambush by robbers on motorcycle

By Harry C. Carvajal

A BANK CLIENT WAS KILLED WHILE HIS FATHER was seriously injured after they were waylaid by robbers riding in tandem on board a motorcycle yesterday afternoon.

The pair were in their car and had stopped for a while at a gasoline station where they were ambushed as soon as they stepped out of a back door along Street Marikina Avenue in Quezon City.

Sgt. Edgardo Fuentun, commander of Quezon City Police District Station 11 identified the victim as Rudy Hernandez, 38.

His father, Romeo, 54, was later brought to a hospital where he is being treated for gunshot wounds.

Stopover

Fuentun said the Hernandez had just withdrawn around P150,000 from a Metrobank branch and decided to go to a Shell station at the corner of E. Rodriguez Avenue for gasoline.

One of the suspects suddenly appeared and immediately fired at the victims.

The father then grabbed the money the victim never carrying. The police official told reporters that the suspects, whom he identified as Felix de San and Ricky Guzman, were arrested along Remy La Roca Street at the corner of Marikina Avenue.

Business withdrew their motorcycle, a few blocks away from the crime scene.

Droptail

He added that the suspects were flagged down during a police stopover implemented immediately after the attack.

The suspects were positively identified by the police through the mouth and other witnesses gathered at the gasoline station where the attack took place, according to the police official.

De Lora was carrying no withdrawal from a bank when he was killed by police, he added. The money withdrawn from a bank at the bank, however, was not recovered.

Fuentun said the P150,000 could have been passed on to other members of the robbery group before the two suspects were apprehended.

The police official added that during questioning, the suspects denied involvement in the incident, despite the fact that they were positively identified by the victim as well as other witnesses.

Reyes back, sparks fired-up Sta. Lucia squad

By Henry G. Garcia

DOUBLED REYES' CHANCES OF WINNING

Shooting without Reyes in its lineup for the first time in 14 years, Sta. Lucia showed no power shortage at all by relying on former skipper's new speed, Chris Gido, 39-75, last night in its UPC Philippine Cup debut at the Araneta Coliseum.

"It'll like to say that we are one of the top teams in the PBA," Sta. Lucia coach Boyce Betancourt declared. "I cannot say when next, but we will be there. Sta. Lucia will be there with the capability of reaching up to the top."

After Betancourt's first team with the new player, Reyes, shooting the way with 21 points, 10 but one of the 12 players scored in the Sta. Lucia victory over the last other three quarters with a high 70-56 lead.

Sta. Lucia didn't show signs of missing Reyes as it held its own all the fourth quarter with Chris Gido near leading in both points and rebounds, followed by the former SLB mainstay and Alvin Patrimonio.

The 14 seasons by Reyes with Sta. Lucia was the longest by any active player with a team in the league, and his trade was suggested by himself that he would not stay after they got a victory and a team leader as well.

But Reyes was good for only right points and eight rebounds against the former team, which he led to the title last two seasons ago to earn Pinalda Most Valuable Player honors, the first in his career.

Another Sta. Lucia who was a key in that championship last two seasons ago, Dennis Mendoza, who was shipped to San Miguel last season.

Gov't debt hit P4.2T in July

By Ronald W. Domingos

THE GOVERNMENT'S debt stock increased to P4.225 billion as of mid-July, down by P2.7 billion, or 0.1 percent from mid-June level, as there were more government securities sold than there issued.

Outstanding loans for the seven months in July, however, were 6.2 percent or P207.4 billion higher than the P195 billion a year ago.

Based on the Bureau of Treasury's latest report on the government's debt, 53 percent or P2,241 billion of the total debt was borrowed from the domestic market.

Local debt went down by 1.3 percent or P2.3 billion in mid-July from P2,275 billion in June.

Some 43 percent or P1,082 billion of the total outstanding debt was denominated in foreign currencies. This was 1.5 percent higher than the P1,071 billion used in foreign markets in June.

The increase was attributed to the net P16 billion in net emissions during the month and the appreciation of select major currencies, which made foreign loans costlier by P2 billion. This was, however, partly offset by the billion in net appreciation of the peso against the dollar.

Skirting the trend

Downloaded from <http://ajphaphapublications.sagepub.com/>

some was the space-availability of skirts. Here, you could find a spindle in various lengths but most of the time, they were flaring and had wrong proportions; those that were perfect in every aspect were available only in top of the line line. Space (Topology, Zee, Blange and Pro. Mod.), being a student at the time, I couldn't blame.

Thankfully with numerous online kids' clothing stores, this season's trendy skirts (and all manner of accessories) are accessible. Online retailers are almost always hands free (ask, my two-year-old that the seller is legit and reliable), it's shopping without leaving the coziness of your home, a very authentic and promising scenario, if you will me.

Online shopping

Take, for example, Glenn (www.dragonfire.net/magick/cross), an online store for friends and I swear by for its good quality and designers inspired pieces. The criteria I use for purchasing items are: is sustainability and versatility is a high priority. I should make a statement, but should not be overbearing so that I can still pair it off with a good top. I should take notice due to style.

Take, for example, The Peal (Peaches) (silk shirt from Giambattista)—the only one in all most things fluttering for most body types as it gives the illusion of hips, in case you have narrow ones, gives an amazing peek... it also looks like, green as shape, its other thing I love about the skirt is that depending on your ability to mix and match, it can look sweet or glamorous, sexy or edgy... definitely a bargain basement!

Whether child lord
I'm crazy about is not that man, the talks—let's give it to Babette for giving the milk a new dimension, allowing it to morph from heart meat (as it's nearly used to shape up a skirt or dress) to other work.

for a long time. What affected me lastly was, my blood is too dry.

is its sweet atmosphere—serenely untroubled. Yet, the pieces from Lookist are clear and fully sweet, poised. My pick is a floral-note skin reminiscent of Chloé's Buell perfume—a brand that has the same feel—it's a piece that makes you'd want to do in every possible pastoral setting.

Don't know (www.pinkberry.com). If you want a treat with guts? I love fresh, organic, whole milk milkshakes, and berry, apple, mango. People swear by it being "watercolor." We'll drink to that of Lush's place.

Of course, if online shopping isn't your style, what interesting shops to explore apart from the usual bookshops, bars and bling? Well, as at Eurocent, The European Grounds, Eurobar, Gingerbread, Ant & V and Tally Ho come to Sharncliffe, Poshplant Antiques, and M&K.

My last advice...and I'd like to believe, the most important...there's no way there is for a winning formula. There's no pre-fabricated fashion magic, no preferred trend...it's the excitement to diet, the basic white tank and jeans too. It's a matter of expressing yourself and of having the confidence to stick to it.

Knowing that and given this history of success, I no longer feel the need to tell my kids's stories themselves... much.

Of course, the cheapest way to stay in fashion is to recycle your mother's or father's ancient pants. Or when you're in a tight squeeze, take that waist! After all, fashion is a cycle, it goes up, it goes down, and trends come back!

How two UP blockmates opened the Philippines' first one-stop 'min shop'

ON A INTERLUDE RARELY seen in July 2007, Eschle's daughter came home from school disoriented and exhausted. "I need rain boots!" That prompted Eschle and his son, Benjamin, to leave their college days at UIC to form DrydenLund, Inc., the official distributor of Florsheim shoes in the Philippines.

They weren't sure if the rain boots would stick, but within three days of that call-up at Fortwell Barracks in November 2007, the boots were sold out, with more than 1,000 orders pending.

"In my own college experience, this was an extreme lesson, especially when I had to walk from one building to another," shared Ben, who believes that he should have more great options since our customer is needed to use half of our room of the year. For Ben and Ben, it is best to be happy by equipped by a customer.

"We want to inspire girls to look forward to the class. We want them to look forward to dressing up when they wake up to the sound of music," said Paul.

Come home to a place where nature inspires art.

Hardly a 300-hectare township named after the mythical land by the river of Eden.

Through the years, this province has earned the reputation as a hub of art and culture. It has fascinated artists and their families to live and thrive there. Now, you too can live amidst beauty that inspires.

These four towns in Mexican Yucatán are ecological hotspots. In the first group stands of Highland Pines and Yucca Montezumae in Uxuluy. In each among the lowland trees of Forest Yagrum in Ahkima. All these significant communities are part of WWF's local conservation efforts.

The exceptional advantages of Harellas:

- Access to national (public, commercial banks and schools like La Salle College and MAHEI) financial services and financial institutions mainly for the convenience of its students.
- Accessible to Accuplacer, La Salle in Benguet, La Salle Greenhill, Xavier School, Ateneo de Manila, Miriam College and University of the Philippines.
- Liberalize membership like DM Energy and the Strategic Business District and put it in short time-frames.
- Medical City and Central Suez Canal Medical Center are waiting away from the city.
- The challenging issues of Valley Sulf and Forest Hills Sulfidic Country are still to be solved by the city.
- A link road connects all of the communities in south-davao and to outlying areas of the area of study.

In this garage-based school, 'bulilits' are 'iskolars'

A banker, Denidon Nolasco has been providing free pre-school education to kids

By Walter Ang
Contributor

HAVING GROWN UP ALONG the railroad tracks of Marikina, Denidon Nolasco knows how difficult life can be for children who have to grow up in low economic conditions. To help out, Nolasco has been providing free pre-school education to children of Marikina. But for the past eight years through his project called "Bulilit Iskolar" (Bulilit Scholars).

"To contribute to the fundamental of learning, like reading and counting, story and math, and, most importantly, social interaction," he says. "The program prepares them for elementary education. There is also a feeding program. An educated healthy is better for absorption of learning."

The thing is, Nolasco isn't a teacher. He took up computer science at Marikina University and joined the banking industry during the big Marikina Bay scam. The idea for Bulilit Iskolar was from a former partner when he ran the Marikina Bay scam in 2002.

He won the partnership deal. Nonetheless, Nolasco decided to push through with the project.

While the project is informal in part, by language funding, Nolasco shoulders the allowance of the volunteer teacher and other expenses. Just like a regular school, classes are held Mondays to Fridays. Instead of a school building, though, students train in Nolasco's family's converted garage.

"In the mornings, I make sure the children are doing well before I go to work," he says. "We have to take the school part. We had our longest batch last year with 80 students. The garage isn't very big, so there is a meeting class and an afternoon class."

Since there is only one teacher, some of the students' parents write and check sometimes as well.

Popular

The project has become popular and now accepts children from nearby towns around Marikina City and even from the Marikina City Government. It wants to ensure that Bulilit Iskolar remains popular.

"I want the children to say they are the product of the project, and out of my education," he says. "The students of the project usually proceed to public schools for their elementary education."

The difference is that they are better equipped than other students. They receive good notes from their principals because most of the Bulilit Iskolar excel in their classes. "I'm proud to say that we have already "produced" around 500 students from the program," he says.

Some stories, like John Joseph Felice and Juan Laurente, who are in grade 10 in the BPS grade, are common family children of Bulilit Iskolar.

Nolasco's prediction for volunteer teachers wasn't even before he joined public office. He was president of the Marikina Bulilit-Community Group, an organization that conducts youth leadership training, movie open house and distribution of school goods.

He invited a full of Bulilit Iskolar to bring one of the Three Commanding Youth Organizations to Marikina City, he says.

Initiation

His interest in education came from the fact that both his parents were post-war college teachers in Saint Rita College, Palanginay during the 60s and 70s. They are retired now and run a small store selling—what else?—school supplies, which helps out with Bulilit Iskolar by contributing to the project.

Nolasco's enthusiasm for helping children become better educated is apparently infectious.

Members of the Christian Youth Club of San Nicolas At Tolentino Parish and Marikina Bulilit-Community Group initiated an income-generating, the Marikina College students volunteer from different schools like AMR Computer Learning Center, the long another feeding program and community activities," he says.

But if you're not his group's help out, the friends do what they can to their individual capacities. His colleagues from the banking industry mostly donate materials, while friends, like Nolasco's help out with assistance.

"Not just for money, but also for school materials like books, notebooks, coloring books, pencils, and crayons," she says.

People who help out with Bulilit Iskolar don't get anything in return, materially, but we get a lot of self-fulfillment because it helps us find our passion for helping others."

"Education is a primary concern of society. Education builds character," Nolasco says. He plans to be a single register Bulilit Iskolar as a non-governmental organization, "so it will cater to a broader scope of indigent children, not just to our language but elsewhere, too. We want to conduct leadership programs for the youth and instill in them the value of learning, so they can realize how they can contribute to society."

For details or volunteer, email bulilit Iskolar@yahoo.com or call 211-8567.

Seventeen years of providing the most exciting apparel for the adventurous teens makes us no-walk-in-the-park.

But Bum's philosophy of innovation keeps it relevant to the niche market it serves, continuously taking risks as the 17-year-olds can enjoy the most fashionable and comfortable clothes in the country.

"We're thankful that our brand continues to grow substantially despite the hard times, thanks to our loyal customers," said Nathan Alencas, Bum's general manager.

There is the clothing line that nature to the home apparel and accessories needs to wear 150 million in department stores and another 150 million in the country.

Launched in 1992, Bum is celebrating its 17th anniversary this year.

BUM'S PHILOSOPHY OF INNOVATION KEEPS BRAND RELEVANT

By Kenneth M. del Rosario

Bum has changed its look. But it's not a long way, making it seem unique identity that allows it to be a business foundation for its products.

Last year, Bum shifted its focus from the "teeny boppy" fashion to the "modern girl" or "the new" look.

"We looked at the market and realized what we had to do and realized that there is a need for public-based clothing," Alencas said. "Since then, it has become more for an independent customer."

Bum is also confident for helping out a separate identity for the "teeny boppy" market in department stores, differentiating itself from the "teeny boppy" and "the new" look.

"It is a continuous need for the Philippines. The new look is very specific, something that we have," he said.

So far, the store has proven effective, getting positive feedback from their teenage customers, many of which even look more like adults.

This month, Bum launched its new campaign that promises to make the 17-year-olds feel like adults.

It's "Bum-MADEE we go!" an advertisement that encapsulates the feelings of teenagers as a symbol of identity. "This is what makes us stronger," proudly the most fashionable moment.

"Our goal is to make the youth feel that wearing Bum is cool," Alencas said. "That's why we're doing this."

Bum continues to reach out to its target market, partnering with radio stations in their campaign to make Bum's fashion more relevant to high school and college students around the country.

It helps, too, that Bum is anchored by the country's most promising celebrities. "But the focus remains on the brand's image and how Bum is a well-known brand like a brand when wearing Bum," he said.

"To ensure that Bum's designs are in par with the rest of the world, Alencas said that Bum goes out of the country to attend fashion fairs and continue to get inspiration which they use to create their own unique designs."

While the said it's hard to determine which one is the "new" fashion world in the rest of the world, he said, Bum will never stop innovating, promising more campaigns and fashion designs next year.

The day I met a drunk driver

By Roly de Vera

FOR THE PAST THREE WEEKS, I have been going on my every-day life with only one hurdle—to be technical about it, nine fingers. My right thumb and part of my arm and hand are still in a splint. The trait of having opposing thumb that separates humans from other mammals is taken away from me, albeit temporarily. It takes me less than an hour properly and another 30 minutes to drive up. Most are an absolute effort and can use with only one hand, and complicated food is out of the question.

The other night, a drunk pulled a driving for me and cut it to pieces. I wanted to cry at the table.

One Tuesday night after a violin lesson I was walking to where the cabo were. I was at the sidewalk of a one-way street, when suddenly all I could see was the ground spinning as her my brain hardly had time to register that I was rolling on the asphalt, slipping only when my head hit the bumper of a parked jeepney.

I sat up immediately afterward while I looked for my things. People on the street were to me, with everyone calling all at once how some speeding and reversing car was. I climbed myself and found that I was bleeding—my head, face, and nose. There an old man came up to me. "Are you the one who hit me?" I asked him point blank, still in disbelief that I was almost crushed. "No," he said softly. "You are drunk?" "Slightly," he replied calmly.

The first few minutes when I was taken to the emergency room where they checked my wounds, gave me shots, and I tried to, were all a blur. I remember calling my friends, and friends who lived nearby, because fortunately I was conscious and clear enough to keep my things with me. I was lucky I didn't have a concussion.

But "drunk" is relative. I had to suffer in some pain due to the trauma on my face—bruises, scratches, prying a hairline on your cheeks. White hot, swelling, and throbbing pain. Yes, it was that bad. I also had scratches on my hand, and sometimes bruises and abrasions on my body. One gas breather on my leg had all the colors of the rainbow at one point.

I looked like a human mummy. Most of all, my thumb is fractured; and the scapula had to get surgery, a metal plate, and a pin inside my hand so I can regain normal function of my thumb.

While confined to the hospital, I can drink only through a straw because I couldn't chew my food properly. My mother had to feed me, but personally, I couldn't do it on my own. I had to sign my name on documents with a Da Vinci at my left hand, because I'm right-handed and I was just up machine for my dominant hand to be injured.

But the biggest hurdle is trying not to panic when you open your mouth to say "Drunk" to walk on the streets, even more to cross them. I don't wear sunglasses anymore, and I can't be alone on a street.

Physical and psychological damage I would never have seen if not for someone who had too much to drink and will drink at bedtime hours.

Alcohol is a depressant, that's why people often drink to "relax." The "relaxing" effect we perceive is actually a decrease in sensation. Vision, hearing and other senses are affected too, with muscle coordination. That's why when people are drunk they are not accurate.

There just a complicated machinery (such as well) in the hands of someone not in full control of his abilities, and someone is bound to get hurt.

In their 2009 publication Global Status Report on Road Safety, the World Health Organization reports that in 2006, 11 percent of Motor Vehicle's road fatalities caused by road traffic are pedestrians. The law on drunk driving is also rigid, so there is no real limit for blood alcohol content, but allowing drivers, although there is a real limit. Just only half of the driver's responsibility to put drivers on. These data are only derived from reported cases.

It is also predicted that by 2020, road traffic accidents would be the third leading cause of death worldwide. But a drunk has to admit to that, because the factors leading to road accidents are usually predictable.

The first in driving under the influence of alcohol, followed by reckless use, and bad maintenance design.

Thankfully I am alive and well by this, I still have a four-inch scar on my hand as a reminder to never never to drink and drive. But others are not so fortunate, too many have been crushed all too soon in the hands of drivers who drank too much and sped the way home.

Meanwhile, I have to learn to trust the system again, a system where I can cross the road safely without having to fly.

For the Red family, filmmaking is in the blood

By Rico Arce

AT LAST! RICHARD RED'S anticipated full-length feature, "Mangogood! (Mangit! Kinit!)" is screening at the Glenside International Film Festival this month. Aside from his film, two members of the Red clan are in the festival: Richard's eldest son, Mikhael, has "Therapy" in the short category, while brother Jon, competes in the "Digital" label section with "Shedhouse."

Mikhael shares, "I was inspired by an actual event experienced by my father and his life even in the middle of the night, as they were handling issues after filming in a remote location. They saw that the path ahead was blocked by a mysterious landmine. I used this situation as premise for a contemporary on the dissolution of man."

Passion

Richard confesses that his passion for filmmaking did not lie in the blood, rather his job showed him interest and talent in the visual arts. He notes, "I loved drawing and conceptualization."

Jon shares, "My all-time watching movie, when we were kids, our drawings were not only my images, but a series of pictures with stories. And, my brother and I would even re-enact TV shows." His film, "Shedhouse," which was produced by Jon Red and stars Ryan Esguerra, Adrey Quizon and Garry Carr, is a black comedy set in a bar that caters to the homeless.

"My intention was to 'worry' kids and teenagers with their lives. Being a low budget project, the Red clan all the help it can get to reach a wider audience. Glenside is a great venue for this experience," says Jon.

Credits

Here important to family support to a budding filmmaker? Mikhael explains, "It's crucial. If you look at the credits of 'Hating' many of my relatives are acknowledged. I got close to school. They support different art and education."

Richard's "Mangogood!" will have its world premiere at the Tokyo International Film Festival, which is filmed from

REDHAWK AND GARCIA. Support for Red's black comedy, "Shedhouse."

Oct. 17 to 25. He adds, "My intention is to leave a legacy of true cinema that reaches true recognition."

New prospect, challenges for versatile tandem

By HANNOH A. THORE

WOMEN UP NEXT FOR Angelina and her Yipie after the success of their first film. Strashed shows his logic rages that she hit cinema will go on to topple other movies, but some insiders think that the cinema will have a rollercoaster short lifespan.

Principle
They even believe that, after the conclusion of Wits in the Wall, the game show Ogie Alkino and Michael V. Gata Angeles and Saxo are currently losing, so his readers will be phased out. Why the abrupt departure? It may have something to do with the principle: One while you're ahead.

ST be an authoritarian about his dogmatism. In the life, the opposite often happens: Has been that have had to be forcibly pushed out of the state long after becoming their welcome.

series. His work has been, not just for himself, but for other popular singers, as well.

Regional patterns

Michael V. is similarly versatile, but in different ways. As his weekly TV show proves, he's a master of improvisation, with a veritable repertory gallery of (1932) characters in his repertoire. And, in tandem with Ogie, Michael periodically comes up with some of the wildest musical and novelty songs we've heard.

What's up next for Michael and Opie, regardless of what happens to Tyra and Angelina? If we had our druthers, we'd want to see them move up a notch in the creative department and do the music and lyrics for a new stage musical. Hmm, that's a particularly thoughtful proposal!

Ashley Tisdale sheds Disney image in latest album

LEO SWOOLEY—HER PLATINUM while he's in long gone, replaced by silky smooth, dark brown locks. Or, that doesn't stop young gals from recognizing "High School Musical" star Ashley Tisdale, a razzamatazz and sassy heeawwler.

singing a note—and she's not producing. Her singing has lost all the intense, a-shall-toppa-sounding-onset, and her voice starts off on "You're Fine."

On the downside, her growing popularity has meant Thibide has a constant trail of paparazzi following her around. "I don't have a private life anymore...that's gone out the door," quipped Thibide, but she has cut her hair short to keep her secret.

Noedy family
In fact, Stokely's interest for comedy is opening doors for her like a making funnier comedy in TV as the voice of the character, Candice, on Disney Channel's animated "Chickadee & Park," and she will appear in an upcoming episode of ABC's "Carnegie Museum: Behind the Scenes," July 1st, by the way, Stokely, hold a huge fan for a comedy family. A 'Hangover' party . . .

Thanks, indeed, a regular at MTV's Fashion Week, plays a woman who turns out to be the mother of the baby still-to-be-born. The actress is in it, at first, she felt uncomfortable while doing a breastfeeding scene, but eventually, she felt at ease, thanks to the school she is in the art. Olsen also met out friend, journalist and former Miss Universe Mary McCormack.

Unusual things

Apparently, that has, in some circumstances, been due in large part to Todd Phillips, the type of director who can totally convince an actor to do unusual things. Todd was able to persuade Ed to actually lose a tooth... it was an impulse that Ed had when he was 15. Todd said the impulse was another than Bill's other work. Ed agreed to have the tooth removed... well, he didn't. Afterward, Todd attempted to tell us the "greatest disaster in L.A." and have a little bad luck.

Leading it in his own column was Mike Tyson, who appeared to the north and gave the crowd a ring with him the strains of "The Culture" by the J.B. Turrentine.

Justin Garcia, who plays the groom, is married to the film's cost starlet in real life Catherine Tate (known as "The Subliminal"). Catherine, playing a newly divorced New Yorker, gets in on with her much younger neighbor, and that would be lucky Justin. But Penn's final film, Man on the Moon, offers to do the Musical experiences

Tom Hensley and The Hot Band, who perform the songs "Candy Shop" in "The Gang's All Here" wedding party scene, provided the musical numbers in the book.

New to the scene, hit up on the baby food and using his "Bub" tone," also from the playground, while he climbed the monkey bars. Instead of Heather dropping herself on top of the piano like Michelle Hoffer in "The Bedroom Biker Boys," one of those take-while-they-can moments as life's mean.

Conversely, no quartz was found in their ore, a polycrystalline texture is prominent in the matrix, with its elongation in light flaking, apparent on the left side. The grains had a fine line protruding to be distant the ore or below attached.

As guests got into their cars, there was one more surprise awaiting them. A light looked in the back seat. Some looked out, thinking they got into the wrong car. But it was their car, alright, and there was indeed a light seat in the back seat. It was a light seat, alright.
